December $637, January $860, February $799 and March $707, so that it will be seen that the cost of lighting the market is very considerable, and to provide a lamp in each shop will largely increase that cost.

Hon. F. H. May.—Well! the people have not got enough light.

Dr. Clark said that if they were going to provide a 16 candle power lamp to each stall they would double the cost of the present lighting. At present they had to pay about $7,000 a year and if they did what was proposed they would have to pay $13,000 or $14,000 a year. Possibly if they provided a lamp for each shop they could do without the light in the passages. That however would only be an experiment.

Mr. Osborne.—Why can't you make the stallholders pay for it? They are using paraffin lamps at present, and it will be better for them if you substitute electric lamps.

Dr. Clark.—I think the Board, or the President, should consider the question of lighting the market, and to insist upon having electric lamps in place of the paraffin ones.

The Chairman.—If you make such a rule you must have a meter.

Hon. F. H. May.—It struck us that the light was wasted. It was so high up.

Dr. Clark.—Well, it was made to include the shop and side streets. I think it would be better to have small lamps for the shops.

Mr. Osborne asked what the Electric Company would light up the market for.

Dr. Clark.—I pay $2 a month for a 16 candle power lamp in the house. That is for the current, but does not include the rent.

Dr. Clark.—I think we might refer this matter to the Director of Public Works for further information.

Hon. F. H. May.—I would like to say that if we had a lamp over each shop and turned the others out, I believe myself there would be quite enough light.

Mr. Osborne.—You don't want the light outside; you want it in the shop.

Hon. F. H. May.—It's a waste there.

Mr. Osborne.—That's lighting the road.

Mr. Brewin.—It's the fish market that wants lighting badly.

Hon. F. H. May.—Yes! they want a lot of light in dealing with fish.

It was eventually resolved to refer the question to the Director of Public Works for further information and report.

The Chairman said in reply to Mr. Brewin's minute that it was part of Mr. Ladd's duties to see to the inspection of the markets.

A NEW SLAUGHTER-HOUSE.

Dr. Clark said—I think we should provide a small Slaughter House at Shaikwan. It has been wanted for some years past. I move that the Government be asked to build one.

Mr. Osborne seconded and the motion was carried.

PLAGUE AT MANILA.

On the motion of Dr. Clark, seconded by Mr. Osborne, the Board decided the port of Manila infected with plague.

RINDERPEST AT FOKULAM.

Dr. Clark stated that with regard to the rinderpest at Fokulam since the last meeting 15 of the cattle had died, and 10 had recovered, two of them not having contracted the disease at all. The last case which occurred was on 21st March, and the last death was on 25th March. 14 young animals had been put in with a view to lymph, and the last of them was put in the sheds on 21st March, but none of them had been affected. It was necessary to continue the employment of the watchmen.

THE ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE OF THE AUSTRALIAN NAVAL BRIGADE.

The steamer Chingtu (British transport 106), having on board the officers and men of the Australian Naval Contingent, arrived in the harbour on Thursday morning at ten o'clock from Taku, which port she left on the 29th ult.

The Naval Brigade, which is composed of volunteers from New South Wales and Victoria, consists of about 420 officers and men, under the command of Captain Gillespie, R.N. Captain Connor, New South Wales, and Captain Tickle, Victoria, are the officers in charge of the two detachments, which include about fifty marines from New South Wales. These had previously volunteered to go to South Africa, but were left behind, and being sent away when the Naval Brigade was mobilised, offered their services and were accepted as a composite part of the contingent. The Brigade, which left Sydney on 18th August, arrived at the seat of war in October, took part in active fighting. They took their share in the March to Peking, when the Boxers retreated without offering resistance. The Victorians were selected for police duty in Tientsin, whilst the volunteers from New South Wales were stationed at Peking in three different detachments—one at Chang Wang Fu, another at the Legation, and a third at the Lama Temple. Their duties consisted principally of police patrolling and guarding the railway between Peking and Tientsin. The New South Wales contingent remained at Peking from October till the end of last month, when the Victorian detachment, they were relieved by the draft of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers which left here about the middle of March by the Chingtu. Seventeen men of the New South Wales detachment were left behind, they having on the 25th ult. volunteered for railway duty between Peking and Tientsin. On assuming this duty they were discharged from the contingent. The men are in splendid health and spirits, and have but one regret—that they were not privileged to take an active part in the quelling of the Boxers. The Chingtu, besides coaling, has taken on board one or two new twelve-pounders which were left here when the contingent sailed on its way. Mr. May said he hoped that Sydney will be reached in time to enable the Brigade to take part in the Commonwealth celebrations following on the arrival of the Duke and Duchess of York.

His Excellency The Governor (Sir Henry A. Blake, G.C.M.G.) went on board the Chingtu yesterday morning and the Australian Naval Brigade were assembled in the fore part of the ship. His Excellency then addressed the officers and men. He said he was delighted that they should not go through the harbour without his giving himself the pleasure of welcoming them back to British waters after their service in the North, and assuring them of the appreciation of their admirable conduct while performing important duties in Peking and Tientsin. During all that time they had shown themselves worthy of the Empire. Since they had left their homes at the call of duty great and momentous changes had taken place. They left Australia a collection of disconnected Colonies. They returned to a great Federated Commonwealth. They left Australia when we were all living under the glorious reign of the Greatest and Grandest Queen that ever lived. They were returning to take part in welcoming the Sailor Son of our present Sovereign King Edward the Seventh who would prove a worthy successor to his revered Mother. And their presence side by side with their brothers who had fought so well in South Africa would show the world that the British Empire had sons in the North, Sons in the South, sons in the East and sons in the West who were ready to fall in together under the grand old Union Jack that would be a badge of honour for them be adorned with the stars of Valour. With the object of that has been shown during the past year of the readiness of all our colonies to play a man's part in the defence of the Empire we must well quote Shakespeare and say "Come the three corners of the world in arms and we will shock them." He welcomed them back from their duty in North China and wished them to remember that in all probability the distant future of the far East would be in the hands of Australia and when that day came he had no doubt that the men of the Commonwealth would prove themselves worthy sons of worthy fathers. As the representative of their King in Hongkong he thanked them in the name of the great Empire to which they all belonged for the readiness with which they had volunteered for active service under the old flag (Cheers).

Captain Gillespie then called for three cheers for the Governor of Hongkong, which were heartily given.

THE DALLAS COMPANY AT THE THEATRE ROYAL.

The last and final performance of "The Belle of New York" took place on Thursday night, when Mr. and Mrs. Dallas took their benefit, which they so richly deserve. The Theatre was well filled, which ought to speak well for the benefit, but the attendance has been splendid throughout the whole of the season, which must be a matter of much gratification to Mr. Dallas, and his manager Mr. Benham, Herman. The different parts were well sustained, but the opera is so well known here that comment would be useless. Numerous musical tributes were handed to the ladies. Miss Violet Capel charming audience with an entirely new dance, which was well received, she is really a most graceful dancer, and it is a treat to watch her graceful movements. Mr. Dallas introduced a new song entitled "Burlington Bertie" which he gave with his usual spirit. This talented company give to-night their final performance, when "San Toy" is to be staged by special request. The Theatre is sure to be packed to the doors, as the public are always loath to let Mr. and Mrs. Dallas depart from these shores. They are sure to get a royal send off to-night and they well deserve it. We understand the Company leave for Singapore on Monday.

A CRITICAL APPRECIATION.

Among the many disadvantages entailed by residence in the East is the losing touch with current life in the old country, and more especially with things theatrical. A new opera is introduced; rouses the play-loving people of England, to enthusiasm; and runs successfully for a long season until something equally good is found to take its place. But to us exiles in a far land, it is known only by the critiques and sketches with which the Home papers are filled on its production; or the chance account of some recent singer from Europe. Echoes of its music come to us occasionally from a military band or the more indifferent instrumentality of a young lady and a piano; but of the charms and humours of the piece itself we can form no conception. The man, then, who, taking pity on our forlorn condition, brings abroad a company of really good artists and gives us a fair presentation of the theatrical triumphs that are as household words to us, deserves to rank as a public benefactor. In the Colonial list of Birthday Honours his name merits inclusion before that of a petty official whose only claim to notoriety is the building of an indifferent bridge or a Bill for the taxation of the floating population of Hongkong.

Such a man is Mr. Henry Dallas. The bestowal of a C.B. would scarcely repay the debt we owe him for many a dull hour brightened by the artistic labours of his excellent company.

The beautiful of an actor himself, clever and versatile, equally good in drama or light opera, he stands pre-eminent. We in Hongkong have unfortunately not had the opportunity of seeing him this year in one of his best roles, Marcus of the "Sign of the Cross." But in the more humorous characters that he has played in the musical comedies which have held our boards successfully for the past few weeks, he is inimitable. He cleverly differentiates between the Chinaman in "San Toy" and his exiled brother in the "Geisha"; and it would be hard to decide which almost-eyed Celestial is the more amusing. As the elder Bronson in the "Belle of New York" he is a piece of delightful dry humour. His versatility and the resources of his company were both well exemplified in the sudden change of roles necessitated in "The French Maid" by the unfortunate indisposition of one of the members. Called at a moment's notice to surrender his own capital part, he was the rollicking, hearty Blue-jacket to the life. And the waiter suffered no loss in the capable hands of Mr. Hermann, who sprang into the gap and gave us an infinitely amusing study of the ultra British "Knight of the Napkin." The hypocritical Honeycomb, whose sanctimonious exterior cloaked the old Adam, was one of Mr. Dallas' masterpieces; and he was at his best in the many C.B. who would scarcely have been reduced in the Second Act of the "Gay Parisienne."

But his crowning triumph was his representation of Flipper in "The Runaway Girl." Funny without being vulgar, he revelled in his own delightful humour; and the comical appearance, the quaint sayings and the realistic accent of the Cockney Jockey kept the audience in continual laughter from his first entry. The old idea that a mummer must of necessity be a person of low intellect and little learning is now-a-days well-nigh exploded. Mr. Dallas is an exemplification of the fact that an educated gentleman makes an infinitely better actor than the old type of Thespian whose only weapons have been tattered prompt-copies. The fairy god-mother who presided over the birth of Mrs. Dallas, when dowering her with grace, beauty and of talent, forgot but one gift, the power to sing. Hence as the repertoire of the Company here has included only musical pieces we have had to lament too often her absence from the stage. As Mrs. Honeycomb in "The Gay Parisienne" she showed us how cleverly she could act a character-part; and as Cora in "The Belle of New York" the little she had to do at least exemplified the gracefulness of her movements and the charm of her manner. We can imagine no piece which would suit her better than the pretty dramatised version of Ouida's famous "Moths." Miss Fortescue herself could scarcely dispute with her the palm for grace and beauty; and her voice has not the same soft modulation and delightfully sweet intonation. Another rôle that would serve to display her talent to the full would be "Marie Stuart," and she would sweep across the boards with all the majestic elegance of a Madame Modjeska. In the last mournful scene in which the wronged queen bids adieu to her faithful attendants, Mrs. Dallas' tender and sympathetic tones would lend an added pathos to the saddest of English dramas.

To us the most charming appearance that Mr. Dallas has made this season was the unrehearsed effect of the presentation to her on the stage on the night of her birthday. The admiration of the audience, and the respect and love of the members of the company took form in the waving floral tributes and a more valuable gift, professed to her by the deities of the Empire, Mr. Ferrell.

For broad and amusing farce Mr. Munro shines supreme. His Brother-in-law in "The Runaway Girl" was almost worthy of the Gaiety itself. Like Mr. Ferrell his experience has taught him never to over-step the line between humour and vulgarity. He was excellent as the Major in "The Gay Parisienne." As the Jealous Gallic husband in "The French Maid" he was intensely good; and his rendering of the song "Je ne le comprends pas" was one of the best things in the piece. He is best as the "polite lunatic" in the "Belle of New York." Mr. Wilson has a good appearance; and impressed us as a coming actor.

Seldom, indeed, are the travelling companies that bring to the East the music of the West fortunate enough to number among their artists one with a voice at all approaching that of Miss Evelyn de Worms. Not many, indeed, of the leading lights of the night operas even on the London stage can rival her in this respect; and she possesses further advantage in the Guildhall School of Music that has taught her to utilise her vocal powers to the full. Thanks to it she can play with the scores as they are written; her improvisations, trills and runs lend an added charm and freshness to the music. Pretty and piquant, she is at her best as the dainty O Mimosa San or the fetching little San Toy; though "The Geisha" and "The Belle of New York" alone display her voice to the fullest advantage.

Miss May Norton, ever bright and vivacious, adds to a light, flexible and pleasant voice, a charming personality and a decided natural talent for acting. Wonderfully versatile, she is equally at home as the demure Fifi and the alarmingly impatient adventuress Julie Bonbon; as clever Cockney girl as Dudley or Carmenita as she is attractively French in the other characters. The entrain and swing of her acting has made her all through an immense favourite with Hongkong audiences.

Miss Hettie Peck possesses the, for a woman, unusual power of singing a comic song well and with humour. But her Winifred Grey, in "The Runaway Girl," showed that her voice, trained in grand opera, is worthy of better things. Her solos were rendered with taste and feeling; and her acting in this part was beyond all praise. Thoroughly at home on the stage, she moves always with a natural grace; and her coquettish military swagger aided her tunefulness in making "The Soldiers in the Park" the most appreciated song of the evening.

Miss Bertha Hunter has showed a wealth of histrionic power in her good-looking of the middle-aged but always good-looking lady of fashion. Her Lady Hawser in "The French Maid" was a thing to be remembered. Unfortunately such parts give her scant opportunity for displaying the clear and bell-like soprano she is gifted with. Her singing of the pretty coon song "Dinah" was more than excellent.

Miss Beryl Mackay is a very promising actress; and she was best as the Bowery Girl in "The Belle of New York." Her comical "slavery" in "The Gay Parisienne" was a good copy of Lonnie Fear, though a trifle exaggerated; but her imitation of the various styles of dramatic and operatic acting was all that could be desired.

Another young lady who should come to the front in the near future is Miss Minnie Evelyn. Dowered with a pretty face and a pleasing presence, she is very graceful and attractive on the stage; and has evidently capabilities that will well repay development.

The appearance of the premiere danseuse Miss Violet Capel was always welcome. Her movements are ever characterised by grace and ease. Her figure is svelte and beautifully formed; her limbs well-modelled; and her poses are invariably pleasing and artistically lovely.

Any appreciation of the Dallas Company would be incomplete without a word of praise for the scenic artist, Mr. Purford; to whose skillful brush we owe the magnificent pictures staged in "The Geisha," "San Toy" and "The French Maid."

To hurriedly gather an orchestra in such a town he visits and with a very few days' rehearsal to make them perfect in the varied scores of the operas to be produced is a difficult task for the most accomplished musician. But this Mr. Fleming Vallance invariably achieves; and to him as much as to anyone must be the wonderful popularity and success of the Dallas Company be in justice attributed.

upon him of the excellent training that such a school affords. Mr. Harold Godwin would be a valuable accession of strength to any theatrical enterprise. He is a natural talent for acting, he possesses a strong clear and tuneful voice. To our thinking he is at his best as Yen How in "San Toy." As Sofistic in the "Belle," he is in a part very familiar to him; for he has often played at the Shaftesbury with the original company. His appearance aids him in the delineation of the naval or military officer so frequently the hero in musical comedy and unlike too many others he looks the part. He is an excellent stage-manager; and produced the "Belle of New York" for Mr. Dallas.

The veteran actor Mr. Ferrell is equally clever in humorous and in serious parts. The experience of years shows in every gesture, every movement, his great strength lies in the quiet perfection of his acting. He never for a moment allows himself to over-do even the most comic character; and his playing is always an exposition of excellent comedy and never degenerates into broad farce. His best personation is perhaps, the Marquis Inari in "The Geisha"; though he is irresistibly amusing as the Emperor in "San Toy."

Mr. Metcalfe's soft and melodious baritone shows to best advantage in the music of "The Geisha"; and, save for a little, possibly unconscious, affectation his acting in every piece is natural and good.

For broad and amusing farce Mr. Munro shines supreme. His Brother-in-law in "The Runaway Girl" was almost worthy of the Gaiety itself. Like Mr. Ferrell his experience has taught him never to over-step the line between humour and vulgarity. He was excellent as the Major in "The Gay Parisienne." As the Jealous Gallic husband in "The French Maid" he was intensely good; and his rendering of the song "Je ne le comprends pas" was one of the best things in the piece. He is best as the "polite lunatic" in the "Belle of New York." Mr. Wilson has a good appearance; and impressed us as a coming actor.

Seldom, indeed, are the travelling companies that bring to the East the music of the West fortunate enough to number among their artists one with a voice at all approaching that of Miss Evelyn de Worms. Not many, indeed, of the leading lights of the night operas even on the London stage can rival her in this respect; and she possesses further advantage in the Guildhall School of Music that has taught her to utilise her vocal powers to the full. Thanks to it she can play with the scores as they are written; her improvisations, trills and runs lend an added charm and freshness to the music. Pretty and piquant, she is at her best as the dainty O Mimosa San or the fetching little San Toy; though "The Geisha" and "The Belle of New York" alone display her voice to the fullest advantage.

Miss May Norton, ever bright and vivacious, adds to a light, flexible and pleasant voice, a charming personality and a decided natural talent for acting. Wonderfully versatile, she is equally at home as the demure Fifi and the alarmingly impatient adventuress Julie Bonbon; as clever Cockney girl as Dudley or Carmenita as she is attractively French in the other characters. The entrain and swing of her acting has made her all through an immense favourite with Hongkong audiences.

Miss Hettie Peck possesses the, for a woman, unusual power of singing a comic song well and with humour. But her Winifred Grey, in "The Runaway Girl," showed that her voice, trained in grand opera, is worthy of better things. Her solos were rendered with taste and feeling; and her acting in this part was beyond all praise. Thoroughly at home on the stage, she moves always with a natural grace; and her coquettish military swagger aided her tunefulness in making "The Soldiers in the Park" the most appreciated song of the evening.

Miss Bertha Hunter has showed a wealth of histrionic power in her good-looking of the middle-aged but always good-looking lady of fashion. Her Lady Hawser in "The French Maid" was a thing to be remembered. Unfortunately such parts give her scant opportunity for displaying the clear and bell-like soprano she is gifted with. Her singing of the pretty coon song "Dinah" was more than excellent.

Miss Beryl Mackay is a very promising actress; and she was best as the Bowery Girl in "The Belle of New York." Her comical "slavery" in "The Gay Parisienne" was a good copy of Lonnie Fear, though a trifle exaggerated; but her imitation of the various styles of dramatic and operatic acting was all that could be desired.

Another young lady who should come to the front in the near future is Miss Minnie Evelyn. Dowered with a pretty face and a pleasing presence, she is very graceful and attractive on the stage; and has evidently capabilities that will well repay development.

The appearance of the premiere danseuse Miss Violet Capel was always welcome. Her movements are ever characterised by grace and ease. Her figure is svelte and beautifully formed; her limbs well-modelled; and her poses are invariably pleasing and artistically lovely.

Any appreciation of the Dallas Company would be incomplete without a word of praise for the scenic artist, Mr. Purford; to whose skillful brush we owe the magnificent pictures staged in "The Geisha," "San Toy" and "The French Maid."

To hurriedly gather an orchestra in such a town he visits and with a very few days' rehearsal to make them perfect in the varied scores of the operas to be produced is a difficult task for the most accomplished musician. But this Mr. Fleming Vallance invariably achieves; and to him as much as to anyone must be the wonderful popularity and success of the Dallas Company be in justice attributed.

THE COPTIC'S VOYAGE.

The yacht-like trans-Pacific steamer Coptic, which arrived here yesterday from San Francisco via usual ports of call, steadily maintains the reputation for speed, comfort, cleanliness and strict discipline established by her present skilful and genial commander, Captain J. H. Rinder, Lt., R.N.R. She has made the long voyage from Francisco sharp on schedule time and on the run down from Shanghai she covered 368 knots in 24 hours, and although fog was encountered right through the Formosa Channel, necessitating a longer course than would be taken were the weather clear and headlands and "stepping-stones" easily visible, the grand old "White Star" liner did the run down close to Hongkong in a trifle under 56 hours; but when at sundown the fog closed down enveloping everything in darkness, the Captain wisely decided to drop anchor and wait for clearer weather or daylight before getting any closer in to the shore. This action of Captain Rinder gave the greatest satisfaction to the passengers, who one and all conceded that in Captain Rinder the O. & O. Company have a commander who is as cautious as he is unquestionably able, resolute and courteous to a degree.

The leading officers of the Coptic are: Capt. Rinder, Chief Engineer, Brodly; Chief Officer, E. Beadnell; Purser, A. H. Kemil; Surgeon, H. E. Davis, M.D.; Foreight Clerk, W. A. Chapman.

The Coptic has in her time carried many very distinguished Americans and Europeans. It was the Coptic that brought the "American Nelson" Admiral George Dewey, to the Far East when he came out to "Capture or destroy" the Spanish squadron, and it was while travelling home on this vessel that Captain Gridley, who fired the first shot in Manila Bay from Admiral Dewey's flagship the Olympia, died when approaching Kobe. Captain Rinder, it may be added, was the gallant Chief Officer of the Delic when that vessel carried Governor Sir William Den Vaux from Hongkong on his retirement from duty in this Colony.

QUARANTINE.

Mr. E. H. Ray courteously informs us that he has received the following telegram from Saigon:—Twelve days quarantine (including passage) has been established against arrivals from Manila.

THE CANTON MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

The Canton Missionary Conference has forwarded the following report for publication:—

To the Canton Missionary Conference.

Brethren:—Your committee, appointed to prepare a paper setting forth the views of the Conference on the subjects of "Indemnities," "Missionary Interference," etc., with reference also to certain statements contained in despatches from Acting Viceroy Tak to Consul McWade, has carefully considered the subjects referred to and now reports as follows:—

1. We accept fully the statement of Acting Viceroy Tak in his despatch that, "The native Christians are Chinese subjects."

The missionary constantly impresses upon the converts that uniting with a Church does not make them any the less amenable to the laws of China, what we insist upon is that converts shall be treated as Chinese subjects. The Acting Viceroy may not be aware of the fact that converts are not so treated by the local magistrates. They are frequently referred to in open court as aliens, and as those who have forfeited all right to justice before the laws. In several instances local magistrates have requested converts to take their cases to the consuls as the proper persons to whom their cases should be presented. Again, it not infrequently happens that Christians are compelled to pay exorbitant sums of money before they can get their cases before the magistrates; and after the case is admitted unusual and unnecessary delay occurs in the settlement of cases in which Christians are concerned.

So long as the Christians are not treated as other Chinese subjects but are subjected to disabilities and are refused the same protection of law which is given other Chinese subjects, the officials cannot complain of missionary interference. In most instances it is only through the missionary that the converts can secure the rights which the treaties grant them. Therefore we do claim that:—

2. In accordance with the treaties made by the Chinese government with other nations, "Those who quietly profess and teach this doctrine (Christian doctrine) shall not be harassed or persecuted on account of their faith." And that, "Any person whether citizen of the United States or other country or Chinese convert, who according to these tenets peacefully teaches and practices the principles of Christianity, shall in no case be interfered with."

3. We would point out that if it was proper for foreign governments to make the above a part of their treaty with China, it is right and matter of simple justice to the Chinese, who accepted Christianity while this treaty was in force, to claim that its provisions shall be carried out.

4. Failure to insist upon the observance of this part of the treaty is an encouragement to the Chinese government to disregard every other obligation of the treaties they have made with foreign governments.

5. The Viceroy's despatches plainly imply that the recent troubles were caused solely by "children and ruffians," that "Lawless people circulating groundless rumors made trouble in all districts by plundering or looting." This is plainly an attempt to shift the responsibility for the trouble from those who were guilty and place it upon irresponsible parties. It is well known that in almost every instance when trouble occurred, one, or more, wealthy and influential person was the instigator of the trouble and that, "children and ruffians" were but acting under the directions of others.

6. The Viceroy's despatch also states that, "Hereafter missionary cases will not
